"I have had full need to declare that I confirm in the spirit and the letter my former speech, including the final allusion to the tricolor on the Brennero, which Stresemann can interpret as he will, but which Italians interpret in the sense that Italy will never submit to the vio-lation of treaties of peace which guarantee their frontlers conquered

The question of a permanent seat for Germany and for the others will be resumed to morrow, when the French statesmen will lunch at the Belgian embassy. M. Efforts of Wilson to Repeal Panama Canal Tolls Bill Brings Closer Understanding and Promise of Change in Policy in the Mexican Situation.

INTIMATE PAPERS OF COL. HOUSE

INSTALMENT XIL

NGLO-AMERICAN relations were not unfriendly at the beginning of the Wilson administration, but a cordial and intimate understanding could not be reached until two clouds were removed, of which the most important, at least in the public mind, concerned the Panama tolls controversy.

Even before Wilson assumed office he and House seem to have agreed that, despite the overwhelming majority in Congress that favored exemption, the American contention ought not to be upheld. It was of to bring about a cessation of arma emption, the American contention ought not to be upheld. It was of to bring about a cessation of armasupreme importance to emphasize international ethics by an insistence upon the sanctity of treaties. On January 24, 1913, House discussed the matter with Wilson:

"I asked him concerning his views in regard to the Panama canal tolls controversy with Great Britain. I was glad to find that he took the same view that I have, and that is that the clause should be repealed."

The American contention ought not to be upheld. It was of to bring about a cessation of armaments, for he thought our present civilization would eventually be destroyed upon that rock. He stroyed upon that rock the thought, too, that an armament trust was forcing all governments not only to pay excessive prices, they being the only people having any interest in having the different production.

hot in my mind.

My Dear House:

. If the United States will ... repeal the canal toll discrimination, we can command the British fleet, British manufacturers—anything we please. Till we do these things they'll regard us as mean and stingy and dishonorable on occasion and, therefore, peculiar and given to queer freaks; they like us, but don't know what to think of our government. Our government they don't trust or admire. . . Heartware.

If the British felt they had cause of complaint with the American government over the matter of the canal tolls, the American government over the matter of the canal tolls, the American government over the matter of the canal tolls, the American government over the matter of the canal tolls, the American government over the matter of the canal tolls. ment, on the other hand, felt that the British were hampering Wilson's policy in Mexico. The British

I had an interview today with largely from misunderstanding and misinformation on both sides. What was necessary was a frank interchange of views and House welcomed the opportunity, given him in the summer of 1913 to approach British foreign secretary, Sir had not recognized the Huerta government excepting as a provisional one, and that if Huerta undertook to run for president in spite of his promise not to do so, their recognition of him would come up again as an entirely new proposition. He intimated that in these circumstances they would not recognize duties actively.

It was on July 3, 1913, that the two first met, at a small luncheon given by Sir Edward at his house. The only others present were Ambarades. Peers, and Lord Crawe. passador Page and Lord Crewe, then secretary for India.

"He wished to know what would happen if we intervened, and suggested that perhaps the same condition would prevail as in Cuba, mission

"November 12, 1913: At one o'clock," recorded House, "I lunched with Lady Spring-Rice at the British embassy.

"Sir Cecil Spring-Rice was not well enough to appear, and sent me words of regret. After lunch, Sir William Tyrrell and I went into another room and discussed the questions uppermost in the minds of both. He began by showing me dispatches from his government and his own replies. He declared Lord Cowdray had no concessions from Huerta, and if he had them now, or could get them in the future, his government would not recognize their validity. made of him.
"I replied that both the President and Mr. Bryan held very different views of Lord Cowdray and Sir Lionel Carden, and I was glad to hear the other side. He spoke of Sir Edward Grey's desire governments keep up large expen-ditures for war purposes."

Wilson Expansive.

President Wilson was not generally expansive in conferences with persons whom he met for the first time, and House was somewhat surprised and even more pleased that the interview develop-ed the degree of frankness that characterized it.

"November 13, 1913: The President received Tyrrell in the blue room. He had on a gray sack sult, while Sir William wore a cutaway. They both appeared a little embarrassed. The President opened the conversation by saying I had told him of my conversation with him yesterday, and then out-Sir Edward Grey about a matter of State business; and, when I rose to go, he followed me to the door and stopped me and said that he owed me much for the pleasure I had given him in making him acquiainted with you and he wish.

That Sir Edward was impressed by the value of his talk with House is indicated by his decision to send his secretary. Sir William Tyrrell, to the United States to canvass the desired a fling at England.
"We talked of the necessity of curbing armament and of the power of the financial world in our whole matter of Anglo-American relations with the President and his adviser. This was the more important in that the new British House took pains to come into

"January 21, 1914: We (Wilson and Honse) . . . decided it was best to bring the matter to the attention of Congress immediately, so that the British government would have something to go on when parliament convened February 10. We decided it was best not to see Senator O'Gorman alone, but to call the Senate foreign relations committee in as a whole, Republicans and Democrats alike, and

The President spoke frankly and well; so did Sir William. It was an extremely interesting discussion.

"The President, of his own volition, brought up the arbitration treaty and the Panama tolls question and, much to my surprise, told Sir William what he had in mind, not only as to his views but also how he expected to put them into force. He asked him to convey to Sir Edward Grey his sympath to the repeal of the view that our treaty with the view that our treaty of the view that our treaty with the view that our treaty with the view that our treaty with view of the view that our treaty

The British foreign office made that the fact that by refusing to interfare it plain to Sir Lionel Carden that he must not take steps to interfare in any way with Wilson's anti-Huerta policy in Mexico. Tyrrell on November 25 showed to House dispatches from Grey, plainly indicating this, and henceforth the administration profited by the British influence. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that the abdication and flight of Huerta, in July, 1914, was directly related to the withdrawal of British support.

(By the Associated Press.)

Divergent views as to the future of the petroleum industry were ex pressed by prominent oil men at the opening of hearings yesterday before the Federal oil conservation board. Expert opinions varied from predictions of a shortage in the not distant future to assertions that, by application of the most modern methods, as much oil might be recovered from known fields as has already been taken from them. Henry L. Doherty, of New York, told the conference that petroleum was a wasting national asset, that twice as much was being consumed as was required by the market, and that in the event of war there was no certainty of an adequate supply. James O. Incorporated business enterprises in the United States in 1923 paid out more than a quarter of their net income as Federal, State and net income as Federal, State and local taxes, the national industrial board announced to day. The board's survey showed that the enterprises in 1923 reported an aggregate net income of $9,269,000,000, or 27.7 per cent, in taxes.

The amount paid in taxes was nearly two-thirds the amount paid to stockholders in cash dividends.

mittee a sharp attack on the bill prepared by Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service, at the direction of the committee, creating a separate corps and took direct issue with the arguments put forth in favor of the bill.

Unofficial assurances were forthcoming that there will be no attempt by the general staff to force Gen. Patrick into a position where he might have to face a courtmartial for having expressed views at variance with the War Department general staff policy court ment general staff policy on avia tion, but no such assurances were hinted for officers of lower rank, who have been told they are to be "got" as was Col. Mitchell.

The committee at its meting de-

Schauffler, commanding the 304th pursuit group, that the air service is "under inquisition," because it refuses to lie down and abandon its efforts for a separate corps.

Just when Secretary Davis and Gen. Helmick will appear before the committee will depend on them, probably this week. They will be asked, if present plans hold, whether they have warned air officers that if they continue to talk as they please, instead of by the "book," they will suffer. COALITION IN SENATE BREAKS AFTER REPEALING ESTATE TAX

Smoot will be compelled to restore amounts only to $20,000,000 for 1926. The Democrats said last night they would work toward a total tax reduction of $500,000,000 or maybe $600,000,000. They be lieve, in some instances, that the Treasury can stand this and that the present tax reductions have been kept at a sufficiently low figure to enable the administration to make another tax reduction before the 1928 presidential campaign.

THE TAX BILL.

The action of the Senate in supporting the committee on finance in repealing the Federal estate tax disposed of the main contested points in the tax bill. Subsequently, through a combination hastily formed during the closing hours of the session, the committee was overturned through the repeal of further taxes which brought the total of reductions proposed from the $352,000,000 recommended by the committee up to $451,000,000, or practically $100,000,000 beyond the limit of safety as fixed by Secretary Mellon.

While it is possible these taxes may be restored after the bill comes out of committee of the whole, the vote as cast indicates a very considerable support for the action taken with respect to these items.

The House repealed the provision of the present law permitting publicity of tax payments together with the names of the taxpayers. The Senate has agreed to this provision.

The House repealed the corporation stock tax. The Senate agreed to this, but added an increase of the corporation income tax from 121/2 to 131/2 per cent. This point will be fought out in conference

The House reduced the maximum surtax to 20 per cent. The Senate agreed to this, but reduced somewhat the surtax in the middle brackets, that is, on net incomes between $28,-000 and $100,000, retaining, however, the 20 per cent maximum.

The House amended the present Federai estate tax by providing that 80 per cent of the Federal tax on estates should be credited back to the estate in case a State imposes an inheritance tax on the same estate. The Senate amended the House provision by eliminating altogether the Federal estate tax.

The House provided for a joint congressional committee to inspect income tax, returns and payments. The Senate enlarged the functions of this committee so as to make it practically checking committee to keep Congress informed on the methods pursued by the income tax unit.

The pending points in dispute will engage the attention of the conferees for several days but will not necessarily delay the bill beyond the point of safety for the printing and distribution of blanks to taxpayers in time for the first tax payment on March 15

The probable conferees on the bill will be Senators Smoot, McLean, Curtis, Simmons and Jones, on the part of the Senate, and Representatives Green, Hawley, Treadway, Garner and Collier, on the part of the House.

THE DWINDLING OIL SUPPLY.

"Give us of your oil, for our lamps have gone out," was the cry of the five foolish virgins on their way to a social function some eighteen hundred years ago. An echo of that appeal may be expected from the 48 virgins America unless the warnings uttered by some of the big oil producers are heeded. Not only will the lamps go out, but transportation, shipping and industry will have to look for new

The Federal oil conservation commission has been in session in the Department of the Interior, and oil producers from every section of the country have gathered to give advice and to devise means for warding off the threatened

Every man who has any knowledge whatever of the result of the wasteful destruction of the "unlimited timber resources" which existed in the early days of the republic realizes that if a nolicy of conservation had been put into effect a century ago the threatened timber famine would have been avoided. It is rather late in the day, even now, to begin upon new plans for saving the oil supply. Timber can be replanted and a new crop may be grown within the period of one human life. But nature can not reproduce the mineral oil which has been allowed to go to waste. Henry L. Doberty, of New York, who has spent a lifetime in the oil business, sounded a warning which should be He pointed out that the combined production of the oil fields of Pennsylania. Ohio, Illinois, West Virginia, Indiana and New York, although reaching the enormous total of 2,154,237,000 barrels, would, if still available, supply the needs of the oil users of the United States for less than three years, at the present rate of consumption. "The wastes in the petroleum industry are of shocking magnitude," said Mr. Doherty in his address, and he added: "It is admitted by even my most bitter opponents that by ordinary methods of flowing and pumping we leave in the ground in some pools more than ten barrels for every barrel we recover." He pointed out further that if we have a shortage and have to depend upon foreign countries for our future supply shall have to pay dearly for all we purchase. All the evils of, the business, and there are many, he declared, spring from the bad and brationa! legislation which is in conflict with natural economic and physical laws.

The remedy suggested is that each pool shall be worked as a unit, under which system the tupply can be conserved and the millions of feet of natural gas which are annually wasted

It remains to be seen whether or not the present conference will produce results or will

its "inadequate equipment."

Admitting that the economic condition of the farmers in the corn belt of the middle West is not what should be desired, the first question to arise is this: What do the farmers want? Are they agreed upon the cure to be applied?

Although many who attended the Des Moines corn conference were led to believe that the tariff has failed to give the farmers and growers of corn adequate protection, yet among all the bills offered as an antidote, not one touches the tariff. Import duties on farm products stop the claim that farm commodities are not protected; the charge is that industrial and manufactured commodities are protected too much.

But in the midst of this confusion of premises and conclusions, it is significant that out of the some fifty or sixty bills introduced in both houses of Congress, no two agree as to just what should be done. Examination of the large number of cure-alls offered by the legislative doctors discloses the fact that plans for relief comprise nearly all sorts of nostrums, from government purchase and govern ment price-fixing to the spending of public funds for the exportation of surplus farm products, including corn, and the borrowing of millions of dollars by the government to make sure the farmers, and especially the growers of corn, shall receive a price for their commodities high enough to cover cost of produc ion plus a fair profit.

The flood of such relief bills is less in the Senate simply because there are fewer sen-The flood in the House is enough to swamp that body, and will require the entire time of the session if considered seriously, or at all. Aside from the Haugen bill already passed by the House, creating a cooperative bureau in the Department of Agriculture, there is a bill to create a "farmers' and consumers' financing corporation;" a bill to create 'an American stabilizing commission" to stabilize the prices of farm products; to build government warehouses all over the country wherein to store grain for the farmers; to create an "interstate farm marketing association" run and operated by the government; to direct the Treasury "to issue equalization debentures to exporters of farm products," which means simply subsidizing exporters of farm commodities; to create "an agricultural export commission," authorized to pay farmers the difference between the domestic and probable export price; to create a "United States agricultural cooperative association;" to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to purchase and store all farm products, paying therefor not more than $2 and no less than $1.50 a bushel: and finally the Dickinson bill, the terms of which are not wholly clear.

The Senate has scores of similar bills, all different in their essential provision, but all aiming to cure the troubles of the farmers. In this flood of farm relief bills, the question naturally arises: Just what is it the Iowa corn growers want? Unless they can agree, it will be impossible for Congress or the President to act with any degree of intelligence.

The narrow-mindedness of others seldom bothers you until your conscience does.

RECOGNIZING HEROISM.

While Uncle Sam is making up his mind on the subject of conferring recognition upon Capt. Fried and the gallant members of the crew of the President Roosevelt, Great Britain has already acted, and the Associated Press has arranged to present a gold watch to the captain. Secretary Wilbur has decided that the bestowal of the navy cross, with an intrinsic value of about 30 cents, Mex., should just about do the business. There are men of the axy to whom such decorations were awarded who do not regard the baubles as of very great value, and the reason is that when he was Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels was "so promiscuous" in the bestowal of navy crosses that many officers at first declined to

A similar situation arose during, or immediately following, the civil war, when an entire regiment from the State of Maine was honored by Congress, which went into medal bestowing at wholesale. Soldiers of the Union army who had won their medals were disgusted. But Gen Ainsworth solved the problem when he was assigned to duty as head of the record and pension division of the War Department. He separated the retail from the wholesale, and in the records of the department the men who on their medals individually are segregated from those to whom the honor was awarded en masse.

Possibly Congress, in the course of time may give official recognition to those gallant members of the American merchant marine who thrilled the world by their valor.

London dictates slim waists for men. This seems in line with the efforts of the tax man.

THE CITIZENS' COUNCIL,

The citizens' advisory council of the District of Columbia has been given a splendid opportunity by both houses of Congress to reflect the oninions and wishes of the people of Washington in the matter of proposed legislation affecting the city. If it performs the duties entrusted to it faithfully and efficiently it will fill a long-felt want, and undoubtedly members of Congress will be largely influenced by the recommendations made. For many years there has been widespread dissatisfaction with a system that has deprived the taxpayers of Washington of a voice in the framing of District legislation. Now, by reason of the action of Congress, the citizens have been given the privilege of making known through the council what they believe is best for the community. It will be well therefore for the members of the eltizens council to consider carefully and deliberately any question that has a bearing on the welfare of the people of Washington. The council must not fall into the error of hearing only one side of an argument, nor must it reach conclusion without having given all persons interested an opportunity to be heard. Above all it must not make the mistake of presenting recommendations to Congress that are not sased upon thorough and impartial investigation reaching into every phase of the question.

There appears to be danger that this will happen. At Tuesday's meeting of the council widespread criticism was made because approval was given to a certain bill when only one of the parties in interest had been heard. Charles A. Baker registered a complaint against the action of the council in having heard William H. DeLacy, former judge of the juvenile court, in support of the Gerry bill to reorganize the children's court, without considering two other bills on the same subject. Mr. Baker protested against the policy of the council in passing on large numbers of bills without holding hearings. "We are likely to fall into errors in undertaking to reflect the judgment of the public of the District by voting on measures without getting information that is easily available." he warned the council.

Mr. Baker's warning should be heeded. The citizens' council should not throw away by adopting ill-considered recommendations the chance that has been given it by Congress to become a potential force in the making of laws for the District.

After every war there are a lot of people left that everybody could spare.

THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

The foreign service of the United States, in cluding Ambassadors, Mnisters and consuls together with secretaries, aids, clerks, inspectors, contingent funds, interpreters and many other miscellaneous items, costs in the neighborhood of $9,500,000 annually.

Fourteen Ambassadors receive a salary of $17,500 each, 2 receive $12,000 each, 33 enroys receive $10,000 each, 1 minister resident (Liberia) receives $5,000, and 1 agent and consul general (Tangier) receives $7,500. This is a total of $611,500 to Ambassadors, envoys and special agents. Clerks to embassies and legations cost $350,000. Contingent expenses cost $720,000. Allowances for clerks at consulates are $1,550,000. Salaries for consuls and inspectors amount to something

A son of the late Ambassador Walter Hines Page testified before the House foreign affairs committee that it cost his father approximately $36,000, besides his salary, to run the American embassy in London one year, It appears that no one can afford to be Ambassador to any court in Europe unless he is able and willing to spend anywhere from $25,000 to $35,000 each year out of his own private

Obviously, it is impossible for any citizen to be an Ambassador or envoy to a first class station, especially in Europe, without having an independent private fortune, a part of which he is willing to spend. The salary can not be increased substantially without departing from the rule of economy. No poor man, however brilliant and competent, can be an American Ambassador.

While this situation may be deplorable, it is unavoidable so long as diplomacy and society in foreign courts are intertwined. The social demands upon an American Ambassador to a first class court are almost endless. Such demands often must be met for commercial and business reasons. However, wealth need not result in deterioration of service. The United States has received brilliant service from men whose patriotism and industry were not affected by the fact that they were rich.

The enormous increase in the expense of the foreign service of the United States during the last century is demonstrated when it is recalled that in 1823 the salaries and expenses for clerks and aids of five foreign Ministers in the leading capitals of Europe, and two charge d'affaires in smaller countries, amounted to only $64,000.

The easiest of all occupations is to be a inner and chide poor sports.

AMERICAN INDIANS.

The United States last June had an Indian population amounting to 349,595, according o the figures of the Indian bureau. There were 101,506 in the so-called Five Civilized Tribes and 248,089 exclusive of those tribes. The largest Indian population is in Oklahoma, which numbers 120,163, with Arizona following with an Indian population of 43,950. South Dakota and New Mexico combined have an Indian population of about 46,000. The Indians are scattered in other ining

The total Indian individual and tribal prop erty under the control of the Indian bureau amounts to approximately $1,565,000,000. This property increased in value 50 per cen in the last year. More than $528,000,000 is owned by individuals.

This large amount of Indian property consists of land, timber, funds in banks, wagons and implements, stock, &c. More than 109,400 Indians are on the five Indian reservations. living on 1,368,000 acres of frrigated lands The total cost of irrigating these lands has een more than $31,000,000.

The cost of the Indian bureau service approximates $11,900,000 for the year ending

The Worst Story I heard today has a dear Lady and a Flag in it, so I guess it will go all right, though I was pretty sore when I had to listen to it. A fellow that goes around the country like I do can't always choose the kind of stories he has to listen to. And the worst of it is that I have to listen to the worst ones they've, got, and that means that I have to put up with such things as this one about the Lady and the Flag.

This Lady, it seems, was all excited, and so was everybody else, because it was some kind of a holiday, or maybe the boys was just back from a war or something. Anyway, she had a little flag and she was waving it kind of wild like, and shouting. But so was a lot of others shouting and waving, so there really ain't no good reason for picking on this poor woman, except that she happened to stick her flag into some grouch's eye.

woman, except that she happened to stick her flag into some grouch's eye.

This man got sore just on account of a little flag in his eye, and maybe a bit of flagstaff and one thing and another, too. Anyhow, he bawled the poor woman out, right on the street, and asked her why she couldn't keep still or something just as mean as that.

The woman came back at him, though, like a woman can when she's put to it by some brute of a man.

Tyes," she says, kind of loud like, "and maybe if you had burled two husbands in one of them glorious wars, maybe you'd wave the flag and shout, too, you mean old thing!"

I guess he sorts slunk away then, like he

MODISH MITZI

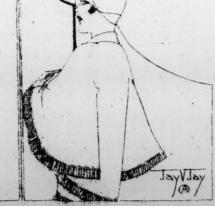

Mitzi Will Welcome Sweet Spring Time in the Shops

Here's Mitzl humming Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" to convince herself that though it may snow today it may be spring tomorrow, or the month after. Anyway her coat with its leopard collar and cuffs is very smart, but think of all the spring wraps that may be smarter and must be worn sooner—or later.

She was only, "well, just looking around," but when a bangkok hat with upturned brim and an ornament thrust through it caught her eye it seemed quite necessary to try it on, and once having become acquainted with its becoming-ness, it became "an opportunity" which she naturally took. Took right away on her head.

Now a spring hat, as every woman knows, must have something else to be worn with it. No one can do better than to wear a spring cont with it. Mitzi found this kasha coat with crepe top and trimmings of pleatings very much to her taste. It does make a stunning outfit. Let it snow! Let it hail!— (All rights protected by The George Matthew Adams Service-Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

Mitzi will wear her spring costume just the same. She has added a pair of gloves embrokicred in apple green. And an envelope pocket-book. One can always adjust one's conflort to one's clothes. Spring things are plenty warm enough even in a snowstorm—if they are new. It's a psychological fact or would be if some one would only let Mitzi prove it.

Wall Street Bit Worried Over U. S. Steel's Report

New York, Feb. 10.—Wall street believes that Steel is the one best business barometer and that, next to Calvin Coolidge and Andrew W. Mellon, it is at the present time the most persistent prophet of prosperity, and therefore the street was a bit worried today when the tonnage report of the big corporation show-ed a falling off for January of 152,-

But we are told by Mr. Arundel Cotter, historian of the United Steel Corporation, that really the differ-ence is not as big as it looks. In analyzing the report, he says:

"The difference, however, is not so great as appears on the surface. Shipments last month exceeded those of December by 150,000 to 160,000 tons. Operations in Januarya veraged about 87 per cent of capacity, against 84 per cent in Decomber and total shipments for the month probably exceeded 1,200,000 tons; so that incoming business may be estimated in excess of 1,000,000 tons, a not unsatisfactory rate for a usually quiet month.

"The loss in tonnage may all be at-tributed to the slack demand in the first fifteen days of the month. Buying picked up in the second half, about keeping pace with shipments. Since the beginning of February demand has been fairly steady, with business distributed fairly well over all lines.

And yet the reader, if he is a bull on his country like Mr. Cool-idge, Mr. Mellon, Mr. George F. Baker, Mr. W. C. Durant, and other gentlemen of good business breeding and long range vision, will be gratified that an optimistic view of the industry seems to be well warranted, if this keynote, sounded by that cast iron pipe organ of the trade—the Iron Age—rings true.

"Specifications released in January against the purchase late last year proved unexpectedly heavy and are largely responsible for a daily ingot production in January exceeded only twice, in March, 1924, and March, 1925. At 4,153,545 tons for the month, or roundly 159,750 tons per working day, last month's steel output was about 15 per cent above theoretical needs or the porabove theoretical needs or the nor mal growth in demand. It was 4 1/2

New York, Feb. 10 (By the Associated Press).—Renewed weakness of the baking shares and the strength of the coal stocks on persistent rumors that secret negotiations, looking to an early resumption of anthracite mining, were pending, were the contrasting features of today's irregularly lower curb market. New York, Feb. 10.—Although the food stocks continued under heavy pressure, high priced industrials had a further spectacular upward movement in today's active stock market trading. Quotations for a number of the specialties were bid up sharply to new high levels for all time, but the general list, while firm, made slow progress, although call money turned distinctly easier in the afternoon, the rate dropping from the renewal figure of 5 ½ per cent to 4 ½.

Although the turnover approximated 2.100.000 shares, the market mated 2.100,000 shares, the market was rather much a specialty affair, almost all the heavy trading having been in that group, with General Electric the outstanding feature, going at one time 18 1/2 points above the previous closing level, and finishing the session 15% higher. Allied Chemical and American Can were not far behind in point of activity and strength, and both inished somewhat under the day's best levels, respectively 34 and 7 points net higher.

BOND BUYING CENTERS ON RAILS AND COPPERS

Slight Recessions Mark Dealings in New York Traction Issues.

ITALY TO GET NEW LOAN

New York, Feb. 10 (By the Asso ciated Press).—Chief buying interest in today's bond market centered est in today's bond market centered in railroad and copper issues, with a corresponding loss of interest in traction, oil and other securities which had played a conspicuous part in the recent upturn.

Railroad liens were under accumulation for both investment and procedures are recently as the content of the content of speculative purposes. Prospective merger developments accounted for a great deal of the activity especially in such issues as Chicago and Alton 3½s, which moved up 2 points to a new high above 55. Delaware & Hudson obligations also responded to the announcement that the Interstate Commerce Commission would reconsider the pro-posal for a trans-Pennsylvania line which might form the backbone of L. F. Lorce's suggested fifth east-ern trunk line. Baltimore & Ohio refunding 6s, Western Pacific S and Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s were other outstanding strong

Copper bonds advanced under the leadership of Anaconda 7s and Chile 6s, both of which sold at the year's top prices. Buying was stim-ulated by prospects that large loans would be made available to the in-dustry on the security of earmerked dustry on the security of earmarked metal in connection with the forma-tion of a new export association. Profit-taking continued to reduce the recent gains of the local transit liens although the progress made in the legislative program for the con-struction of new subways was con-sidered a constructive factor. Slight recessions took place in New York Railways, Third Avenue and Inter-orough issues.

Bankers have virtually concluded negotiations for a $20,000,000 loan to the Italian Credit Institute to finance the expansion of hydro-electric enterprises in Italy. A bond issue for this enterprise is expected to appear on the market next week.

It was at first thought that the recent fire that damaged the alleys would necessitate the postponement or transfer of these matches. But all doubt of the scene of battles was settled last night when Manager Wood stated that an agreement had been reached with the fire underwriters, and that a large force of workmen went to work yesterday.

Inasmuch as the alleys on which the matches will be rolled, namely 14 and 15, were not damaged by the fire, a thorough cleaning and polishing will put these two alleys was parent that they were outclassed and the locals experienced little difficulty in rolling up a score of 18 to 7 when time for the half sounded.

Early in the second half Capt. Parish of the Navy was compelled to retire because of a bad cut on the cheek that resulted from a hard fail while running. At this stage Navy substitutes were sent into the fray and the teams played on more even terms.

THOUGH this special arrangement is being made for these two matches, the allays will probably not reopen for public business before February 22. It is probable then that only 20 will be in condition, as all are to be planed and several are to be replaced. Leagues are expected to resume activities at that time.

THIS change has improved THIS change has improved the offensive power of the Fort Wayne team. Stone-braker's activities are moresuited for a forward. He is known for his deadly shooting and he is a terror under the basket.

Once he hovers within scoring range he invariably drops the sphere through the cords. Whenever restrained from creeping near the scoring sector he resorts to distance tosses. He is considered the peer in this method of netting bas-kets.

The class of the Fort Wayne contingent was demonstrated when it knocked off the Rochester Centrals by an overwhelming score.

Write it the ice!

THIS talk about you "never could smoke a pipe" . . . write it on the ice! Sure, you can smoke a pipe. It's just a matter of picking the packing. Dig up that old jimmy-pipe and start fresh . . . with Prince Albert. That's the prescription that has brought pipe-joy to millions.

P. A. is so genuinely friendly. It hits your smoke-spot in deep center right off the bat. Doesn't bite your tongue or parch your throat, because the Prince Albert process said "nix on the rough stuff" right at the beginning. Just cool contentment in every puff—the urge to load up and light up again and again.

Prince Albert is great tobacco. You recognize that the instant you pull that cool, comforting smoke into your system. So fragrant that jimmy-pipes are more than welcome in "the best room in the house." So full-bodied and satisfying that you want to hit it up from morning to midnight. And do!

Don't put off till tomorrow what you can smoke today. Get a tidy red tin of P. A. now. Snap back the hinged lid and release that wonderful fragrance. Tamp a load into the bowl of your jimmy-pipe and light up. Now you've got it . . . that taste. Say-isn't that the goods, now?

NORTHEAST CITIZEN ASSOCIATIONS PLAN TO END LONG SPLIT

Trinidad and Other Groups' Heads Propose Move to Merge Again.

REFUSE PLANT CAUSED FIRST DISAGREEMENT

Separation Has Weakened Both, Leaders Believe; Vote to Be Cast in March.

Steps have been taken for the consolidation of the Trinidad and Northeast Citizens Associations, long separated due to a disagree the District refuse plant.

Dr. Robert W. McCullough, pres-

Evan A. Tucker, veteran president of the Northeast Citizens association, has been won over to the ciation, has been won over to the love feast and will propose the merger at the next meeting of his group.

Although trash is still burned daily at the municipal dump, the two associations feel that their divorce was ill advised as it resulted in weakening the strength of both groups. Citizens of the Trinidad association who suffer from the smoke of the burning trash are hopeful that the northeast group will aid them in their fight for the abolition of the dump after the two organizations have been reunited. In the meantime both sides are endeavoring to forget the past in an attempt to effect the reconciliation.
